

ABSTRACT

The present invention is a method and system to reduce storage in a inter-procedural analysis solver. In one embodiment, local graphs are pruned. The local graphs represent local problems, which correspond to separately compilable components in a software program. Each of the local graphs has edges and vertices. Each edge has a transfer function. Each vertex has a value. Values of the local graph form a lattice under a partial ordering.